

Bachelor thesis "Viennese element in media coverage of political event by Národní listy in 1871" is focused on the way how the Czech press in the second half of 19th century disposed of information which were assumed from Viennese press. I have chosen a pe-riod of constitutional proceeding between the Czech and Viennese department in 1871 for the research. This medial event contained Czech issue as an internationally-political element. The bachelor thesis describes historical developement of Czech-German relati-onship and the standing of Czech countries within the Habsburg monarchy from the revolution year 1848 until the year 1871. The work also covers a brief development of media in the Czech territories during this time. The practical part of this work compares Viennese and Czech contemporary journals in the year 1871, describes differencies be-tween contents and the informative shift in the Czech journal.
